AGRICULTURAL MACHINES.

REAPER AND MOWER.—
ATKINS'S IMPROVED
SELF-RAKING REAPER AND MOWER
FOR 1856.
[Illustration]
This machine is warranted to be the best in use. It is simple in its construction, light in draft, and will cut more grain in a given time than any other machine. It will cut from 10 to 12 acres per day, and will do it well. It will cut grain of any length, and will lay it in gavels of any size desired. It will cut grain that is down, and will cut it as well as that which is standing. It will cut grain that is tangled, and will not clog. It will cut grain that is green, and will not heat. It will cut grain that is ripe, and will not shell. It will cut grain that is wet, and will not mould. It will cut grain that is dry, and will not waste. It will cut grain that is tough, and will not break. It will cut grain that is brittle, and will not shatter. It will cut grain that is tall, and will not lodge. It will cut grain that is short, and will not ride over it. It will cut grain that is thick, and will not choke. It will cut grain that is thin, and will not slobber. It will cut grain that is even, and will not ridge. It will cut grain that is uneven, and will not scalp. It will cut grain that is tangled, and will not wind. It will cut grain that is straight, and will not side draft. It will cut grain that is lodged, and will not rake. It will cut grain that is standing, and will not rake

THE BUCHANAN BLOW-OUT TUESDAY NIGHT.

We have become somewhat familiar with the term "fusion", and ought to know what it means by this time; but we confess that we had no true appreciation of the force of the term until last Tuesday night. It was reserved for the Black Democracy to illustrate to us, practically, that they meant by fusion. The crowd that assembled in the Court-House yard that night was truly a fused one, but the smallest element of the fusion seemed to be Nebraskaism. Of course we are not speaking of the knot gathered upon the platform, who constituted the "committee," or rather had a meeting of their own, of which the crowd below were but spectators. There was a very large proportion of the sudden Anti-Nebraska men, and a great number of boys were mixed in the crowd than we have ever before seen in a political meeting.

Mr. Cockle presided over the meeting with remarkable grace, and led off in a neat little gladiatorial speech, which received considerable applause.

Mac. then treated out his new pet, J. W. Parker, Esq., a young lawyer of good talents, who is to be put upon the track this fall for Prosecuting Attorney. We had expected from Mr. Parker something different from what we heard. Heretofore he has generally confined himself to a speech that has logically considered, it was the best established. There was no button to it, no substance, no aim. Touching the great issue now before the country he said not a word to the point. No one who heard him could fail to think that his heart was not with the dark cause he was espousing, and that he was endeavoring to cover up by gestures and loud tones what he lacked in convictions. Mr. Parker rolled himself over and over in the mud of slavery-extension sophistry, until, at the close of his speech, he was completely covered with the disguise of Black Democracy. This was his maiden political speech, we believe—his baptism into the church of the Slaveocracy. The spirit of it was very bad, and we were sorry to see him introduced to so many unnecessary imitations of Douglas's peculiar style of demagogueism. Mr. Parker is worthy of a better model—one that will commend him to be indicated by the tenor of his speech.

Next came Wellington, fresh from his Chatsworth defeat. The gallant Dolly assumed considerable courage, and did very well. His shameless perversion of the true state of affairs in Kansas, and his misrepresentation to pollute the minds of ages both in Kansas and in Washington, that have of late shaken the country from centre to circumference, by bringing up instances of personal fray for which no one but the parties participating is responsible and which our party condemns strongly as any statesman, simply went mugs here been expected.

McDONALD closed the performances by responding to loud calls for Major O'Keefe, and promised to "fix his Kansas on a future occasion," whether deuces grass knew what they were to believe twenty-four hours in advance, is somewhat limited they did not to "fix Kansas" some time since. And with Mac.'s threatening mysteriousness ended the Ratification Meeting of the Pro-Slavery Democracy of Peoria.

There was quite a crowd—we have seen it trebled, and so has the editor of the Press,—but there was no enthusiasm. Five minutes talk from Geary or Cooper that night would have elicited more hearty applause from that very audience than all that was given to the speakers during the whole evening.

No, no, the hearts of the people were not touched. Peoria will not let her voice go out for Slavery in the free North even though Buchanan does bear the brand.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT—Terrific Scenes.—This morning, at the train on the Peoria and Oquawka Railroad was coming in from Elmwood, the engineer discovered something lying on the track ahead, which he took to be a fowl, and blew the whistle to frighten it off, and stepping the speed of the engine; but as he came nearer, he discovered to his horror, when too late to stop the train, that it was the head of a man! The cars ran over the head, crushing it into a hundred pieces, and severing an arm from the body. It appears the body lay on one side of the track, with the head immediately on the rail, and it was not easily observed from the position in which it lay. The strong supposition is that the men committed suicide. He came to Peoria on the Rock Island train, and his name, as given by the conductor, was Henry Cole. He had a ticket for Mr. John Wham for some time past, has been considerably addicted to drinking, and was probably insane when under its influence. He had no family. He was 29 years of age, and a tailor by trade. About an hour before he left he had started for Pekin, about, (taking the track of the railroad,) with scarcely any money in his pocket. It is possible that some action on the track, but it seems to us more probable that it was a case of deliberate suicide.

Jay—We received a call to-day from Mr. Wm. H. Thompson, Esq., of the firm of Allen & Thompson, plumbers, St. Louis. He has been spending a few days in our city, and his rooms at the Messenger House. Those of our citizens desiring anything in this line will do well to give him a call.

Jay—We would call attention to the advertisement of S. M. Swannwick & Co., who have just received and established a new branch meat on Washington street. The members of this firm are men whom we are glad to mention favorably to our business firms in this city, and we have no doubt they will succeed.

Jay—Our old friend L. M. Deer has returned from the East having had in one of his two stocks of family groceries ever brought to Peoria. Mr. D. is a gentlemanly and reliable man in trade, and will venture the opinion that he has not a poor article in his establishment—Give him a call and either he or Mr. LOCKLEY will wait upon you satisfactorily.

Jay—Over fifty vessels are now afloat on the Upper Lakes, bound to Oswego, loaded with sixty 000,000 bushels of grain.

Jay—The annual report of the Bank of Montreal has just been published, and exhibits a very satisfactory state of affairs. The bank pays a dividend of 8 per cent. for the past year, and has a surplus fund of 600,000 over the loss. The capital stock is now 1,251,621, and the circulation £900,000.

Jay—Lord Brougham is now nearly eighty years of age, but his mind is still clear and vigorous, and he is still taking an active part in law reform.

Jay—F. E. Head, of Clinton, N. Y., says he has a sheep twelve years old that has dropped twenty-three lambs.

Jay—Ground was broken on the Shakespeare Memorial Building on the 4th inst. The event was duly celebrated.

Jay—The total number of deaths in Dublin during the month of May was one hundred and eighty-seven.

Jay—The President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, has appointed Henry D. LaCoste as Surveyor of the Customs at Memphis, Tenn., vice Dennis A. Mahoney, appointed during the recess of the Senate.

Jay—Two thousand persons were present at a Know-nothing in Madison, Wis., on the evening of the 6th, which was addressed by Col. Lane. The meeting broke up with repeated and enthusiastic cheers for Col. Lane, and cheers for Frank Pierce and the pro-slavery democracy generally.

Jay—The first remark made by Senator Sumner upon reaching his lodgings after he had been so cruelly beaten by Mr. Brooks was, "Wilson," addressing his colleague in the Senate, is when I recover I will meet them again, and put it to them again."

Jay—Ex-President Van Buren was thrown from his horse on Wednesday morning of last week, while riding through the village of Kinderhook, and was considerably, though not seriously injured.

Jay—The trial of Palmer, the English poisoner, attracts immense crowds. Among the distinguished persons present on the 17th of May, was Mr. Dallas, the American minister.

Jay—The statement of the condition of the Phœnix Insurance Company, of Hartford, Ct., of which Messrs. Sperry & Bliss are agents will appear to-morrow.

BRUTTEL.—The following is an extract from a letter written by Jno. T. Brattle, of Boston:

"Out of the South comes the wh'wind and cold out of the North." Such is the picture which the head of Fob gives from his speech of the Almighty himself, to represent the temper of two latitudes. The whirlwind is the brutal force of the slaveocracy. Its fierce moan spirit; the track of its devastation is terror; but the punishment that follows be pushed and Norwester justice; brand, scarring and tearing the life from the front marching southwards on the wings of polar wind, kindled by heavenly thunder, but sweeping a white storm of bullets in the face of all public sentiment, and may our estate in icy graves."

SPEECH OF COL. BISSELL.

When the intelligence of the nomination of Col. Bissell reached Belleville the citizens assembled en masse and with a band of music proceeded to the residence of that gentleman, to express their gratification at the result.

Col. B. in a few remarks, thanked his friends, and said:

"I feel that I am not nobody, I know—I remember the first nomination that was conferred upon me by the Democracy of Illinois. It was at your electoral collection of that memorable time, and, as you will recollect, I was among those that I shall long remember your kindness.

Since my return home from the East, the condition of my health has been such as to cause anxiety, as to present me, until recently, in a feeble condition, and I am not free from it still. This has been my fate, rather than yours. My health has been such as to cause anxiety, and for my long previous absence from home has been the result of my endeavors to restore it to the least, but that you are still so ready to greet me with sound and hearty welcome, I assure you my heart is penetrated with gratitude, and in whatever way I may be the result of my restoration, whether I am elected or defeated, I shall remain a citizen of you the kindest consideration and attention, and I feel no disposition to withdraw my nomination for some months, yet I feel that certain duties are before me which I must discharge it. It was a spontaneous, voluntary offering, and I feel that I am bound to respect your friends, and others who, you, to ratify and confirm the act of the Convention, as far as you deem proper. At a future time I am not able, I shall retire to private life, and leave the great principles which are at issue to you and to those who may succeed you. Gentlemen, I thank you, I shall ever cherish with such ability as I possess.

Jay—We received a call to-day from Mr. Wm. H. Thompson, Esq., of the firm of Allen & Thompson, plumbers, St. Louis. He has been spending a few days in our city, and his rooms at the Messenger House. Those of our citizens desiring anything in this line will do well to give him a call.
